TO BE BROKEN, ALAS!

Now comes the Government party, though its candidates, Messrs. Fred H. Hayselden, John T. Baker, James Keau and E. K. Lilikalani, and publishes a platform containing fourteen sections and many promises. These political fatings preface the fourteen sections and many promises of the Government party by making a broad distinction between "an influential body of voters" and the representative tax-payers of the district; the PRESS has beforetime been criticized by the Government organ for making the same distinction.

As we have remarked, the platform contains fourteen sections and many promises, of which the people will please take note. We wish the tax-payers, not the "influential body of voters" of the district, to carefully read these fourteen sections and many promises, and then carefully compare them with the "seven and seventy" sections and myriad promises of this same Government party, as put forth through its previous political fatings. After the brain is tired and the patriotic heart grows sick at the comparison of the Government party's perfidy with the neglected cause of the laboring classes and the taxpayers, the national (?) candidates—if they listen—will be able to catch the groan which will accompany the verdict: "To be broken, alas! to be broken!"

What will be broken? Not the assertion that these political fatings will support the Crown which protects them—not the assertion that they will aid and abet the King's "Constitutional Advisers," popularly known as the King's "political tricksters,"—not that they believe in the mutual confidence existing between the King and his present faithful Ministers—faithless to the people, not to the King—not the fact that they endorse the policy of the present Government—not the promise that they will stand by the eighty-cent dollar—not the promise that they will vote for the ten-million loan, and then help squander it—not the fact that they will vote for free opium and free liquor, and ultimately unite in singing the national anthem over the graves of the poor natives—not these things nor anything else that they can perpetrate to keep themselves in power and to continue the job of robbing the remnant of the native race before they poison them.

What will be broken, then? All that has been broken in the past and more. The promise to preserve and foster the national feeling "among citizens, native and foreign alike," will be broken in the future as in the past; the promise to promote the "material welfare and advancement of our country," will be broken in the future as in the past; the promise to restore "public confidence" will be broken in the future as in the past; the promise to maintain "our rank as an independent nation," in any sense that will apply the principle and boon of freedom to the tax-payers and the laboring mechanics, will be broken; the promise that the Government schools shall "be as free" and unfettered from conditions—as the Government schools of those countries in which popular education is most highly esteemed and cherished," will be broken as in the past; the promise that the national debt shall be kept within the limit of our available natural resources, will be broken as in the past; the promise that "our roads and bridges" shall receive any practical attention, will be broken as it has been persistently broken in the past; the promise that they will support "all measures for the promotion of the public health," will be flagrantly broken as soon as put to a practical test; the promise of "an able and efficient" police force is a sham promise to catch votes, and will be broken as soon as the votes are secured; and the promise to sustain these fourteen sections and many promises, wherever they relate to the actual cause of the tax-payers and laboring people will be broken by these political fatings, and were intended to be broken by them when they were made, as soon as they are seated within the shadow of a Government Legislature, whose penumbra is cast in Utah from a financial and ministerial eclipse which has taken place in the orbit of Monarchical Government in Hawaii.

Christmas Services

Were held at the different churches during Christmas Day and yesterday. An elaborate report of the different gatherings, together with descriptions of the churches and abstracts of the sermons preached, which was prepared for the PRESS, has been crowded out for want of space, and brief notice in all that can be made of these very interesting Christmas celebrations. St. Andrew's Cathedral was elaborately decorated. Both congregations held services on Christmas Day. The Bishop and the Rev. W. H. Barnes conducted the cathedral services, the Bishop preaching in both native and English. After the first service, Rev. George Wallace, assisted by Rev. M. Groser, commenced the second service. Rev. Mr. Wallace preached an excellent sermon from Exodus 12: 26. There were large audiences present at both services.

On Christmas eve, a Christmas-tree entertainment was held at the Chinese Y. M. C. A. Hall. The hall was brilliantly illuminated and a veritable old Santa Claus, dressed in Chinese costume, made the Chinese children happy with numerous gifts and sweetmeats. The entertainment was under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Damon, the Chinese pastor and Mr. Gao Kim.

At the Roman Catholic Cathedral on last Friday the services were fully carried out according to previously published programme. High and low masses were celebrated in the forenoon to full congregations of natives and foreigners. During the services, baptism was administered to 39 persons, and over 50 persons were confirmed after the afternoon service.

Rev. Dr. Hyde preached an effective sermon at Kaumakapili Church on Christmas Day at half past ten o'clock to a large audience; his sermon treated of the origin and nature of the celebration of Christmas.

At the Reformatory School and at Kawaiahao Institute feasts were spread for the Reformatory boys and the Kawaiahao Sunday School scholars respectively.

During Sunday, Christmas services were held at the Fort-street and Bethel Union Churches. Fort-street Church was nicely decorated and large audiences were present at both the morning service and the Christmas service in the evening. At the evening service Pastor Cruzan preached upon the marked contrast between the first Christmas and the Christmas of to-day. The preacher said, in effect, that in the early days the people did not celebrate Christmas as we do now. Now millions chant the Christmas carols. The character of Christ was vividly pictured; first, His character was unique; second, the revelations He has given the world are wonderful; third, His manner of expressing truth was different from what we find it at the present time; fourth, His mission was divine; and fifth, He still lives on earth; we cannot bury Him from our thoughts. The music throughout was most excellent.

At the Bethel Union Church the services were conducted by the Rev. E. C. Oggel, who delivered forcible and interesting sermons to large audiences. Taken as a whole the Christmas services for this year have been fully up to the standard of previous years, and in many points of interest have surpassed them.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS

The following is an abstract of the news received by the steamer Mari-pasa, which arrived in port yesterday: The Berlin municipal elections return 35 Liberals, 5 Anti-Democrats, and 2 Socialists; near 400 miners have been killed in the Pnejuchin mine, in Siberia, by an explosion of dynamite; four dynamiters were arrested in San Francisco on December 16th; a family of four persons were burned to death in Detroit on December 16th; several hundred cigar makers left New York for San Francisco within the last month; Vanderbilt, the deceased millionaire, in his will bequeaths $188,000,000 to his children; a dispatch from Cairo states that the rebels have pillaged and burned Ferkat and other villages; two miners were killed by a gas explosion at Wilke-barre, Penn.; a large anti-Chinese meeting was held in Truckee, Cal., on December 19th; the French Government has ordered the suspension of hostilities in Madagascar; the French Government has submitted the draft of the commercial treaty between France and China; Stephen B. Guion, the owner of steamships, died in Liverpool on December 19th; the U. S. steamer Dolphin sailed on a sixty days' trial trip on December 19th; eleven Europeans were massacred by Burmese troops, near Manipoor; it is reported that the Emperor of China will be married in February; three negro children were burned to death at Starkville, Miss., December 16th; the Pope is denounced by the Madrid papers for favoring the project to marry Queen Mercedes to the son of Don Carlos.
